

Emmanuela Douyon

An economist specializing in the evaluation of policies and projects and a member of Nou pap dòmi (We will not sleep). Nou pap dòmi is a collective of young Haitians committed to influencing the way the Haitian State serves the population and to fighting corruption, impunity, and social injustice. Nou pap dòmi was created in December 2017, as a result of the Petro Challengers movement. The collective is demanding the legal prosecution of those charged by the Haitian court of embezzlement and misappropriation of the PetroCaribe fund - including the president of the country, Jovenel Moïse. In June 2019, after meetings with local organizations and an online survey with more than 6,000 Haitians, the collective proposed its guidelines for an inclusive transitional administration following the tentative resignation of the President Jovenel Moïse.

Emmanuela is also Founder of POLICITÉ, a consulting firm and think tank that focuses on economic development. Ms. Douyon is one of the key voices of the Haitian feminist movement, advocating for expanded social, political and economic opportunities for women. Prior to her current roles, Douyon served as an Economic Attaché for the Haitian Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Chargé de Mission of Project Management for the Technical Secretariat of the Haiti's Inter-Ministerial Committee for Territorial Planning and Agriculture.
